

If today were the last day of yours

2023.10.26 – 10.27 | Homesession: Barcelona, Spain.

If today were the last day of yours is the latest chapter of the artist's memoir, dealing with her daily experiences related to her family of origin, reflecting the notions of homemaking and caretaking. The site-specific exhibition harmonizes with the distinctive architecture and multifunctionality of Homesession, which serves as a studio, a residence as well as an exhibition venue. The unique special characteristics of the site mirrors the artist's own circumstances, where work is an integral part of life, and vice versa.

This exhibition showcases the artist's inquiries and reflections on when an event has already taken place and become the past: what remains? How should those individuals, events, and objects preserved in memory be presented, especially after the passage of time and the vast distances across the land and sea, to represent their essence in the present?
